

Nontraditional Healing
To Believe it or Not?

Sometimes after watching You Tube movies on my web site www.tatianashealingcenter.com, people ask me whether they should believe that my energy sessions help.

Unfortunately, nowadays people are being deceived more and more often, so they have every right not to trust anyone. Many years ago, before I learned to listen to my intuition, I still did not belong to gullible people. I preferred to double check everything to get a clear idea and be sure whether I was being told truth or lies; so I share and understand all skeptical doubts.

I would like to reassure those who find it difficult to believe: do not torture yourself – keep disbelieving me; trust will come later, it will happen all by itself. You are welcome to try to use my abilities, and I will do my best to help you, just please, don't prevent me from helping you.

What does this mean? If you use my services, please follow the instruction that I give you, which describes the proper use of the charged water and all the objects that I charge for you. The instruction is very simple; you are not supposed to do anything difficult for you, because all this is just for your pleasure and benefit.

Sorry, but your belief or doubts during your aura healing sessions has nothing to do with the result. I work at the cellular level, and the cell wants to live, so it comes in contact with the life energy which I supply it with, no matter what my patient is thinking of at the moment.

A story of the child whose pictures before and after my sessions you see below, presents just an example of my work and proves that it is possible to apply my healing treatment even to those incapable of comprehending the situation, asking questions and believing or disbelieving.

Now he is a healthy, strong and active boy who, like many children of his age, rides a bicycle and sometimes falls down from it getting abrasions on his knees. A happy, carefree childhood as it should be. Thank God!

The child was born with a large hemangioma on the left leg, and as you understand, had no idea of his problem. His mother definitely denied any nontraditional healing methods.

The doctor said that the hemangioma was going to grow with the boy. He told the parents that later it would be possible to perform surgery, but big, bright spots on the leg would remain forever, though possibly as years passed by, they would not be that bright. The doctor was convinced that the boy would never be able to wear shorts, because of the visible spots.

Then the boy's mother applied to a beautician surgeon, who was ready to perform a laser surgery, when the child grows older, but he also confirmed that it would be impossible to remove the spots and that they would remain forever.

Such medical conclusion brought the parents into despair. The mother was deeply depressed. They did not trust any nontraditional healing methods, and could not help their sorrow. Then the boy's grandparents brought me the boy's picture and asked for help.

It took me 3 years to work with his pictures. As the boy was growing, his grandparents supplied me with his updated photos. I saw him in person only recently when he was about 7 years old. You can see the result of my work looking at the second picture – there is no spot at all.

Dear parents, please, remember that whether you wish it or not, you encode your children even at a distance. Opposite charges always attract each other.

A mother and her son: feminine and masculine energies, two antipodes which always attract each other. That is why mom's energy always has a much greater influence on a son than a daughter. At the same time, dad's energy has a greater influence on his daughter.

You should always be very careful about your children and never send them your long distant negative programs.

When I began working with the child's photos, his mom's negative program, expressed in her depression and denial of alternative healing methods, receded into the background, because a cell wants to live. Gradually diseased cells began to die displaced by newly formed healthy ones which grew stronger and stronger. The result was positive, as always – there came complete convalescence. Thank God!

Thank God for giving us the energy which helps all living beings to regain strength and health, regardless of their skepticism or belief in healing.

The cat's story is another good example.

When his owners brought him in for a session and I asked them to open the bag, they warned me that he might scratch or bite. But the animal was so weak, unhappy, miserable, and sick that he was unable of biting at all.

During 3 days he had been refusing to eat and drink water, was sluggish, sleepy and looked depressed. A visit to a vet made him feel even worse. The owners of this red cracker happened to be my clients, so after visiting the vet's clinic they brought the cat to my sessions.

After the second visit the cat started coughing, his nose bled with white matter, and then a 5 inches long piece of grass came out through his nose.

When I had first put my hand into the bag, the cat immediately pressed his head to it and gratefully looked at me with his eyes full of pain. His look was pleading and expressed genuine gratitude, and it was clear that he understood that I was going to help him. Did he believe in healing or did he deny it then? He was just suffering.

He is lucky to live in a family of kind, sensitive, compassionate people, who after visiting the doctor incapable of curing the cat, began to seek alternative ways to help him. Today, this fluffy family favorite pleases his household. That is great!

*Another frequently asked question is the question about the religion.

Your religion has no influence on the healing. There is only one God, and he helps all of us, no matter what name we call Him. The most important thing is to bring Love and Light to everyone!

God bless you!
